

Supported by Tauranga Writers

TW Professional Services

Need some professional help?

Chad Dick (BSc, PhD, Dip Edit), author and editor based in the Bay of Plenty.

Provides: manuscript assessment, editing, proofreading, ghost-writing, document preparation, fiction, non-fiction, technical, scientific and business manuscripts of any length. Prompt and friendly service.

In addition to a Diploma in Proofreading and Editing, Chad has extensive experience as an editor, including six years as editor of a scientific journal, and has written numerous papers, reviews, reports, articles and stories. He now writes and edits mostly fiction, but is also happy to work with non-fiction.

Rates are negotiable, depending on word count, topic and complexity, and client requirements. References are available.

Contact: Phone: 07 549 3085; Mobile: 0273 59 69 81; Email: chad@100percentproof.co.nz

Jenny Argante is registered with the New Zealand Society of Authors as a manuscript reviewer and assessor.

She also contributes to their mentorship programmes, and has been a professional editor for over twenty years.

Jenny is also available every first Saturday of the month 10am – 4pm for a free drop in session on Bringing Out the Book in You. You can also request the following free PDFs from Jenny – Constructive Editing: a Writer's Guide; I as in Identity: Writing Based on Personal & Family History; Korero Purakau: The Art of Storytelling and Rhythm and Rhyme (on becoming a poet.)

Contact: Phone: 07 777 0212, txt 022 053 48 68; Email wordwizard41@xtra.co.nz.

Lee Murray, award-winning writer and editor

For: editing, story critique, manuscript assessment/appraisal, and ghostwriting. Prefer fiction projects. Rates vary according to word-count and client requirements but are typically in line with NZSA recommendations. References are available.

Contact: Email leekiwi@gmail.com; www.leemurray.info

Supported by Tauranga Writers

Jan Goldie - writer, editor, manuscript feedback

A marketing, communications and content writer with many years experience working with a diverse range of business and community groups, I'm a big fan of hitting the nail on the head when it comes to using social media, blogs, websites and email communication to connect with your potential clients.

She is a children's fiction writer - see www.jangoldie.com

Jan offers manuscript assessment and 'big picture' feedback on work in progress.

Contact: shellbewrite@gmail.com or 027 575 9881